

£10,000 raised at Annual Golf Day!

The Midlands annual golf day of one of the UK's leading wealth management firms raised almost £10,000 for the Birmingham Community Foundation charity.

Financial specialists Jobson James attracted 18 teams to play in the annual event which was held at Olton Golf Club in Solihull in June 2008.

Quirky competitions on the course together with a raffle and an enthusiastic auction held towards the end of evening added to the fun.

Richard Venner, managing director of Edgbaston-based Jobson James said: "The Birmingham Community Foundation was set up just over ten years ago by the city's business leaders to enable both companies and businesses to invest back in to the city's community infrastructure."

"I believe that people forget that the backbone of wealth and success in any city is created by a strong infrastructure that sits behind it.

This type of framework does not build itself. It needs a commitment from those who live, work and play here to ensure sustainability for the future... I have seen the work that the charity undertakes and the transformation of many lives that takes place as a result.

Jobson James is delighted to help the charity towards achieving their goal, helping others to help themselves along the way."
